Children's Picture Book for ages 5-8

In this charming fairy tale, young Jacob stalks the woods with his tranquilizer gun, looking for dragons to catch and sell to the zoo. As the most cunning and successful of all the dragon catchers, he accumulates great wealth and is revered by everyone in town. Jacob, however, doesn't feel good about what he is doing. He can see how sad and frightened the captured dragons are, and he realizes that things must change.

Written in rhyme, against a backdrop of beautiful, watercolor illustrations, this book tells the heartwarming story of a boy who lets his conscience guide him to a kinder, gentler way of being. The story teaches children valuable lessons about friendship, doing the right thing, and saying you're sorry. They will come to understand that a true friend is worth more than all the riches in the world.
